White House Declares No Official Announcement On Surrender

By International News Service

LONDON, May 7.—(AP)—The German government today announced that it had ordered the unconditional surrender of all German armed forces in Europe, and no story to that effect is authorized.

Shortly after 10 a. m. E. W. T., however, the German-controlled Prague radio said that German troops in Czechoslovakia did not acknowledge Doenitz's surrender announcement and would continue to fight until a free passage out of the country had been obtained.

The Prague statement said: "The report broadcast at midday today by the enemy station at Flensburg saying the Reich government has capitulated unconditionally to the Soviet Union as well, does not correspond to the facts."

"It is clearly enemy propaganda, intent on breaking our troops will to resist."

"The Reich government has only ceased the fight against the western powers."

"In our area the struggle will be continued until the Germans in the East are saved and until our way

Girl Aerialist Falls To Her Death

NEW YORK, May 7.—Tragedy struck the Ringling Brothers & Barnum & Bailey Circus again last night when Victoria Torrence, 32, part of a husband and wife high aerial act, fell 70 feet to her death at Madison Square Garden.

Victoria and her husband, Franz, had finished their act and were beginning to descend on a rope. Their manner of descent was a carefully worked out routine of acrobatics. But she lost her balance and fell. She died 29 minutes later in a hospital.

A circus employee rushed to the ring and picked up the motionless, white-clad acrobat. Some of the audience of 8,000 screamed. But the show went on without a perceptible break.

The accident followed another, April 27th, when eight girls balancing two ladders in a human pyramid collapsed, catapulting 40 feet to the sawdust-covered cement floor. Five were injured, two seriously.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Linguistic Difficulties

Washington, May 5. SLIGHT doubt exists here that from the San Francisco Conference, there will ultimately emerge a charter for an international security organization soundly based on Dunbarton Oaks lines and measurably satisfactory to those who believe that upon such an association depends the world's hope for averting an irretrievably ruinous third war.

ENLIGHTENED self-interest compels this conviction. A long peace is equally essential to the Russians to the British, to ourselves, to all other nations represented at the conference. There is no other even faintly plausible suggestion by which a protracted or permanent peace can be achieved. This conference, the only instrument through which peace is possible, must succeed. There is no alternative and any other result assumes an unbelievable degree of stupidity.

GOLD

History is full of instances of wholesale inflation, all of which ended disastrously.

There were the Mississippi Bubble, the Florida Land Boom, the German Mark spree.

Future generations may come to feel that the New Deal was guilty of the most spectacular blunder of all in its effort to corner the world's gold.

On paper, the transactions made a profit which the New Dealers quickly spent. The profits were purely a "mark-up" type of inflation. The money came out of the pockets of those who had loaned money or accepted gold-standard currency on the good faith of the American government.

Those who did business with the government in that period went in with 100-cent dollars and came out with 59-cent dollars.

Meanwhile, the New Deal industriously bought gold, at inflated prices, from nations all over the world who, for various reasons, were abandoning the gold standard.

Various nations, some of them at that very moment getting ready to try to conquer us, were very glad to swap gold which they didn't want for scrap iron, gasoline, guns and ammunition with which to attack us or nations whom we considered our friends.

We didn't corner all the gold, but we wound up with about four-fifths of the known supply—23 billions out of a possible 28 billions.

This gold was buried at Ft. Knox, Kentucky, and for years the New Dealers have been boasting about it as a sort of nest-egg for the future.

Neither the fact that in the long run the gold had cost us many billions more than it was worth, nor that enemy nations had played us for suckers by trading the gold to us for war supplies they have been using against us, has served to tone down the feeling of pride various Administration big-shots have shown over our stock of gold.

But it now is becoming known that the government has been whittling away industriously at the gold stock, until there is not enough of it left to back up our own currency in adequate fashion—let alone enough to finance the world's reconstruction through some sort of Bretton Woods international bank.

The reason why the New Deal administration was driven to tap our gold reserves is itself a commentary on the Santa Claus approach of our government to international problems.

We have shipped abroad many billions worth of goods under what is called "lend-lease."

For several years everyone who found fault with the government's financial methods was told that lend-lease meant that sometime we would be paid for at least a large part of the goods we were sending abroad.

But it is an unpleasant fact that our foreign friends have been considering the lease-lend shipments an outright gift, and that our own government so views them. It works like this:

In a certain part of Latin-America, which was under discussion recently before the United States Senate, our exports, mostly lease-lend exports, have totalled $12,000,000 in two years, while our imports in that time have been only a fourth as much, or $3,000,000,000.

Nevertheless, so much of lend-lease is considered purely a gift that the trade balance wound up being against America.

Despite the shipment of American goods by a ratio

SHORTAGE TO SURPLUS

With the approaching liberation of Malaya and the Dutch East Indies, the question of what is to be done with the nation's new synthetic rubber industry after the war seems less academic than it did a few months ago. The scarcity of rubber will be supplanted by a surplus and the problem it will present will be no less acute.

This is not a problem which will arise the day after the Japanese are deprived of their conquests. It will probably be many months before production is restored and enough ships are available to bring natural rubber back on the market in pre-war quantities. But it is a problem which is already being called to the attention of the country by men in the industry, including P. W. Litchfield, chairman of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company.

Mr. Litchfield urges the preservation, at least in part, of the synthetic rubber industry built up during the war. This is the only sound policy. It seems no clear that it would be wise to encourage the nations of tropical America to develop their own sources of the natural product.

In order to do this, some agreement must previously be reached with the British and Dutch, who controlled the chief sources of rubber production before the war. This will not be particularly easy to arrange since these two nations will be eager to regain their dominant position. But the fact that the United States, which is the largest consumer of rubber, is now able to supply the bulk of its own needs with the synthetic product will place this nation in a strong bargaining position when the negotiations are begun.

THE CRUCIAL ARM

One of the lessons emerging from the war, with one Axis power vanquished and the other reeling toward defeat, is that naval power is crucial.

Germany, in the final months of the war, lost more than 3,000,000 men to the Western Allies alone. Many additional millions were lost to Russia. In numerous instances the Nazis were crushed when they were pinned against the sea.

The British were likewise pinned against the sea, once at Dunkerque and again in Greece. In each instance they used their sea power to withdraw the bulk of their forces. The Nazis had no such arm to aid them in coastal pockets.

Without sea power the Nazis faced fatal transportation handicaps and were unable to merge their war effort closely with that of Japan. Blockades imposed by Allied navies confined the procurement of German supplies to the continent of Europe.

It can be taken for granted that this lesson has not been lost on Russia, which had a comparatively small fleet when the war started. To this has been added one-third of what was left of the Italian fleet, Russian shipyards are steadily expanding the Soviet maritime strength.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

(By Courier Staff Member)

The largest poll in the county at the recent election was in this borough, 1,107 voters.

At a meeting of members of the America House, Hook and Ladder to serve for the ensuing year, the following officers were elected: President, William Joyce; vice-president, George Vanzant; secretary, William H. Smith; assistant secretary, George W. Wright; treasurer, William P. Wright; foreman, George W. Wright; assistant foreman, William Metzker; directors, William P. Young, William H. Smith, and William Metzker.

It has been the practice of the borough authorities under the superintendence of the high constable to provide in the basement of the town hall bunks for the use of foot travelers, popularly known as tramps. These lodgers as a rule are not very cleanly, neither are they disposed to leave things as they find them. The other morning it was discovered that some of them had torn up a bunk and made a fire on the floor. This was done on several occasions last winter, and it repeated may be the cause of a serious conflagration.

The Florence Iron Foundry, operated by R. D. Wood & Sons, have made a general reduction of wages and the firm of A. H. McNeal & Co., manufacturers of pipe, have announced a general reduction. of four to one, the dollar balance wound up in the foreign nations by a total of $1,500,000,000. Our shipments of $12,000,000,000 were discounted so much that they were worth only $1,500,000,000 cash in the foreign markets.

That's where the gold has been going — to pay off foreign nations, in effect, for accepting billions of dollars of goods under lend-lease!

Substantially $3,000,000,000 in gold already has left the United States by this process, and according to Senator Taft's information, between $4,000,000,000 and $6,000,000,000 more has been earmarked.

The dwindling stock of American gold is one of the factors in a gigantic squeeze into which our national finances have been caught.

It is this deficiency which has made necessary the step now under way of further reducing the gold content of the standard American dollar—the Federal Reserve Note—from 40 cents to 25 cents.

What emerges from this transaction is a dollar worth about 37 cents of the dollar as it stood in 1932.

Translated into another form, the net result of these operations, when they are completed, will be that the American dollar will have been inflated twice over during the history of the New Deal.

1k On Finance Given Before Women's Club

BRISTOL, May 7—Reports committee chairman, the acceptance of two new members and a finance featured the meeting of the Southampton Women's Club at the home of Mrs. Frederickson, here, Thursday.

The meeting, attended by 27 members, was in charge of the president, Mrs. Paul Reigendesch. The program was in charge of Mrs. Fred A. Stocker, chairman of the finance committee, who gave the main talk during the afternoon. Members welcomed were Mrs. Robert Winder and Mrs. Vin-Gorman.

Representing the American home citizenship committee, Mrs. D. Mason declared this is a real period for home and youth. Today's Quiet Moment

By P. Paul Freeman
Minister of Cornwells and Wilkinson
Memorial Methodist Churches

Our Father God, we thank Thee that Thou art always near. And in this moment of quietness we reach out to Thee in prayer for help and strength to meet the tasks this week will bring. Fortify our spirits by Thy love, we pray, so that we may meet the temptations each day brings with a calm and upright spirit. Speak to our hearts Thy word of peace; turn us from doubt to hope, from envy and strife to love and faith, from sadness to joy. Be near to those we love, O Father; bless our homes that they may be filled with loving-kindness and joy. And though we may be far from our loved ones, may we be united by Thy grace. We pray in the name of Him who loved us and gave Himself for us. Amen.

Warns of Danger of Having "PW" On Jackets

BALTIMORE, May 7.—Acknowledging a growing fad among young men of initialing their jackets with the letters "PW," the Third Service Command today warned of the dangers involved in this practice, particularly in the vicinity of prisoner of war camps and in areas where prisoners are working.

ers of war is the method used to identify the prisoners as such, and thus the markings constitute a security measure.

"Prisoners are kept behind barbed wire at all times when they are not working, and they are under guard both when they are confined to their inclosures, and when they are laboring outside of the prisoner compounds," it was explained.

"For this reason, persons wearing the 'PW' marking on their clothing, and not under guard, would stand the risk of being apprehended by military police or other civil or federal authorities. If they were near a prisoner of war camp or working area, and ignored the orders of the MP on guard, they would be in danger of being shot."

The Service Command cited a recent example of the near-apprehension of a Baltimore high school-age boy by two soldiers who mistook him for an escaped German prisoner of war.

The boy was clad in blue denim much like those worn by many war prisoners, and a "PW" was painted on the back of his overalls in large white letters. The soldiers, driving north on Calvert street, observed the boy walking into an alley from a dark side street, chased and caught him, and released him when they discovered he was not a prisoner.

Had the incident occurred near a prisoner of war camp, or had the soldiers been armed, the Service Command warned, the consequences might have been more serious.

Sonia D. Johnson Is Wed To Pvt. Smith

Harold Fisher Smith, Philadelphia. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Samuel L. Gaskell in Manning Memorial Methodist Church. The edifice was gay with spring flowers, with palms and cut flowers adorning the altar. Miss Dorothy Gaskell, organist, rendered Lohengrin's wedding march as the bridal party entered the church, and for the recessional played the Mendelssohn march. The soloist, Miss Lorraine Ramsey, Newtown, sang "Liebestraum," "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Francis P. Bodine, wore a gown of white French marquisette made with sweetheart neckline. The fitted bodice was trimmed with old fashioned lace; fitted sleeves were long and the full skirt ended in a long train. Her fingertip veil of net was appliqued with flowers of net, and her headpiece was Dutch cap effect. She carried an arm bouquet of white carnations and snapdragons.

The former Miss Johnson chose as her attendants, her sister, Miss Christine E. Johnson, as maid of honor, and Miss June Fish, Stroudsburg, as bridesmaid. They wore gowns of marquisette made with fitted bodices, sweetheart necklines, and three-quarter length fitted sleeves. The bodices were trimmed with Valenciennes lace, and gowns were patterned with peplums and full skirts, floor length. Their nose veils of net were the same shades as their dresses and were attached to clusters of matching flowers. The maid of honor's gown was of light pink and she carried pink carnations and yellow "snaps" tied with yellow ribbon. Miss Fish's dress was of aqua tone, and her bouquet was pink carnations and snapdragons tied with pink ribbon.

Mr. Earl Nickerson, Edgely, served as best man in the absence of his son, Cpl. Theodore Nickerson, who is in the European theatre of war. Mr. William Ellershaw, Jr., Springfield, was selected by the groom as usher.

A reception for 50 guests was held in the church social room. Guests attended from points in New York, New Jersey, Maryland, also from Philadelphia, Bristol and Tullytown.

The bride's mother wore a light blue flowered Jersey dress, yellow hat, white accessories, and a corsage of yellow roses.

Mrs. Smith is a graduate of Falls Township high school and the New York Institute of Dietetics. The groom has been in the army two years, serving one year in the Southwest Pacific as an observer with an artillery battalion. He suffered shrapnel wounds on Leyte. In addition to the Purple Heart, he is entitled to wear the Philippine Liberation ribbon with two stars and a spearhead, and the Southwest Pacific Asiatic ribbon with one star.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were gold pin and earrings sets. The groom's gifts to the best man and usher were wallets.

After a honeymoon in New York City, the bride will make her home with her mother for the duration. For her traveling costume, Mrs. Smith chose a suit of lime green with matching hat, and black accessories, and wore a corsage of yellow roses.

ERKES ALLOWS 4 HITS AND PITCHES TEAM TO VICTORY

Langhorne Nine Wins A Crushing Victory Over Fallsington Team

FINAL SCORE IS 11 TO 2

Fallsington Aided in Own Defeat by Six Errors During the Game

LANGHORNE, May 7.—Allowing but four hits, "Bill" Erkes pitched the Langhorne High School to a crushing defeat over Fallsington High, Friday afternoon. The Redskins were aided in their victory by six Fallsington errors. It was Langhorne's second league triumph in four starts.

White and Hartley held the winners to seven hits, divided among four players but these hits came in the clutches and accounted for Langhorne tallies. Dick Lakens made two singles and a double and drove in three runs. Joe Lukens connected for two singles and drove in three runs. The other hits were made by Wheeler and Mongillo and accounted for the other markers.

Only in 1st and 3rd innings was Falls able to score. Its first marker was a result of an error by Pizzano, a walk to Purcell, and a single by Kish. The second run was made on a double, infield out, and single with Di Natale getting the two-bagger.

back into the homeland is secured."

The announcement was by Count Lutz Schwerin Von Krosigk, German foreign minister.

The Flensburg radio operates from German soil just south of the Danish frontier.

It has not yet been clarified whether or not this station is operating in concert with and approval of Allied military authorities.

There was no immediate confirmation of the Krosigk announcement from any authoritative source.

Reuter's military correspondent said Doenitz's order meant the end of the war in Europe—obviously a fact if German troops still in the field lay down their arms and the Allied High Command accepts the Flensburg announcement as definite and final.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The White House at 10:18 a. m. E. W. T. today declared that it had no official announcement to make on reports emanating from Europe on the final surrender of Germany.

Press Secretary Jonathan Daniels, commenting on a story from Paris that the Germans had surrendered completely declared:

"We have nothing official to announce now."

PLANS FOR V-E DAY IN BRISTOL

When V-E Day is announced, residents of the Bristol area are requested to mark the occasion with a spirit of prayer and thanksgiving.

Arrangements made by the Bristol Ministerium are for a service of prayer and thanksgiving in every church in Bristol three hours after the news is received. If, however, the news is received at 5 p. m. or later, the services in the individual churches will be held at 9 a. m. the following day. If the information should be received on Saturday at five p. m. or later, the regular Sunday morning services will take the place of the special services marking V-E Day.

At 8 p. m. following the receipt of the news there will be a mass meeting in the Grand Theatre unless the day should be on a Saturday or Sunday.

Air raid sirens and whistles will be sounded in a distinctive signal upon receipt of the information that peace has been declared in Germany.

Whistles will be given six blasts of 5 seconds each with a 5 second interval between each blast, then a 2 minute silent interval and the 6 blasts repeated, another 2 minute silent interval and the 6 blasts repeated. This will make 3 series of 6 blasts apiece.

Church bells and other bells will be sounded for 3 one minute periods with a 2 minute interval between each. It seems to be the opinion of the municipalities in this county that no demonstration such as a parade or other celebration be staged at this time. The thought back of this is that we will still be at war in the Pacific and out of respect to those who have lost their lives or have been injured we desire from any display of this type.

IN THIS respect, San Francisco is not different from other conferences that it is on a larger scale. There was the same trouble at Tehran and again at Yalta. After those, a good deal of nonsense was written of how the late President Roosevelt personally charmed Marshal Stalin and of what close personal friends they had become. This was bunk. You cannot become great personal friends with a man to whom you must talk through a third party and who must reply through a third party, and whose conversation otherwise is as unintelligible to you as yours is to him. Love cannot be made under such circumstances, nor charm applied.

—O—

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

AN example of what happens was given not long ago by a reliable observer present at both Stalin-Roosevelt-Churchill conferences. Mr. Roosevelt, sitting next to Mr. Stalin, told the Marshal one of his favorite stories with flourishes of the cigarette holder, great animation of countenance and concluding in a shout of laughter at his own joke. Marshal Stalin joined heartily in the presidential laughter though he had not understood a word. Then he turned to his interpreter, who translated the Roosevelt story. The Marshal did not laugh at all. He did not even smile. His face was perfectly blank. Either he just did not think it funny—or he missed the point.

—O—

IT ALSO should be remembered that there is not one interpreter but always two. Obviously, there could not be just one. No matter how great his integrity, that would be far too great power to give any individual. One interpreter could put the white lead into the coffee cups of both sides. So, always there has to be another interpreter, each checking on the other. Naturally, this makes each interpreter extremely careful not to interpret too freely nor too colorfully, lest his colleague say to him "wait a minute" or "hold on" or "that is not quite right," etc. This tends to denature the conversation, eliminate all humor, irony, color, subtlety, emphasis and inflection.

—O—

IT TENDS to reduce conversation to cold, drab and very simple terms. It nullifies individuals charm, robs personal contact of its pleasures and helps conceal rather than reveal. It also adds greatly to the tedium of conferring. Under such circumstances, it is not a wonder there should be misunderstandings and suspicions. The wonder is there should be so few and that these not be of vital importance. If, as seems sure, the conference outcome is generally satisfactory, it will be a notable achievement and justify optimism. It might also be noted that so far as American leadership is concerned, the linguistic difficulties have not been lessened by the journalistic heckling which Secretary of State Stettin has been subjected from the sta-

CLEARLY, education is the way to conquer the language of staccato Russian and American understanding is conceding of the importance for the future of the world. The more our public learn of their language and the public men learn of ours, the easier that will be. In particular, our diplomats should know Russian. Russian is far more important not to a diplomat than French. David Lawrence has suggested that should send no more ambassadors to Moscow who do not speak Russian—and it would help it in the future the Russian Ambassador here spoke English. Both languages can be learned.
